Art Unit: 1618

Claims 1, 2 and 5-20 are presented for examination.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1,2 and 5-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over European Patent Application 0224352.

Art Unit: 1618

The European Patent application teaches a method of administering less than 20 microliters of an ophthalmic formulation in a spray of droplet forms. See the abstract. The above reference differs from the claimed invention in the droplet diameter and discharge velocity. It would have been obvious to a person skilled in the art to determine the droplet size and the velocity of an ophthalmic formulation, considering that the determination of such parameters is considered to be within the skill of the artisan in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

One skilled in the art would have been motivated to employ the teachings of the above reference, since it relates to a pharmaceutical dosage in a spray droplet form at the claimed range volume for the treatment of ophthalmic disorders. The above reference makes clear that the drug has been delivered at the proper dosage, and the intended treatment has been accomplished. The determination of droplet size is considered to be within the skill of the artisan in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Applicant's arguments and remarks have been carefully considered, but are not deemed to be persuasive. Applicant alleges criticality to the advantages of the claimed concentrations and droplet size on the pupil diameter over the prior art. Applicant refers to data in the specification to demonstrate such advantage. The allegation is not well taken. The presented data in the specification compare a dosage form administered by a pipette to the dosage of the claimed invention administered by a jet stream. There is no evidence of record to compare the advantages of the dosage form used by the jet stream of the instant application with the jet stream of the prior art. Furthermore, the presented data are not commensurate with the claimed language.
